

Explore Collaboration Opportunities among Teachers College (TC), Columbia University (CU), and Barnard Faculty (B)

Low Library

November 3, 2022

Columbia University Executive Vice President for Research, Jeannette Wing, Senior Vice Provost for Faculty Advancement, Dennis Mitchell, Teachers College, Columbia University President, Thomas Bailey, and Barnard College Provost, Linda Bell, have invited you to an event to create new opportunities for collaboration and community building among the faculty at Teachers College, Barnard College, and Columbia University. The event will highlight Teachers College's research expertise in the areas of education, psychology, and Barnard's research expertise; showcase successful collaborations across the three campuses, and provide networking opportunities for both early career and senior faculty during the reception and poster session, featuring several examples of existing programs that offer collaborative potential.

3:00-3:15 REGISTRATION (Low Library Rotunda)

3:15-3:30 INTRODUCTORY REMARKS (Low Library Faculty Room)

Carol Scheffner Hammer, Ph.D., Vice Dean for Research, Teachers College
Jeannette Wing, Ph.D., Executive Vice President for Research, Columbia University
Thomas Bailey, Ph.D., President, Teachers College
Linda Bell, Ph.D., Provost, Barnard College

3:30-4:15 LIGHTNING TALKS (in order of presentation)

If Peace Could Talk: A Data Science Study on Linguistic Differences in News Reporting from High vs. Low Peace Societies

Peter Coleman, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology and Education, Department of Organization and Leadership, Director of the International Center for Cooperation and Conflict Resolution, Teachers College and Co-Director of the Advanced Consortium for Cooperation, Conflict, and Complexity (AC4), The Earth Institute, Columbia University

Data Analytics in Education - The 4A's: Accurate, Accessible, Actionable, Accountable

Alex Bowers, Ph.D., Professor of Education Leadership, Urban Education Leaders Program, Department of Organization and Leadership, Teachers College and Faculty Affiliate, Data Science Institute, Columbia University

Make with Data: Exploring STEM Impact and Engagement in Student-led and Purpose-driven Projects

Nathan Holbert, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Communication, Media and Learning Technology Design, Department of Mathematics, Science and Technology, Teachers College

Racial Literacy Development and Teacher Education

Yolanda Sealey-Ruiz, Ph.D., Associate Professor, English Education, Department of Arts and Humanities, Teachers College

Understanding Diversity Dynamics in Organizations: Identifying Barriers Caused by Stereotypes and Strategies for Disrupting Them

Caryn Block, Ph.D., Professor of Psychology and Education, Department of Organization and Leadership, Teachers College

Addressing Racial Disparities in Engagement of Ethnic Minorities with Parkinson's Disease Specialists in the Washington Heights/Inwood and Harlem Neighborhoods in NYC

Lori Quinn, Ph.D., Professor of Movement Science and Kinesiology and Chair of the Department of Biobehavioral Sciences, Teachers College and Adjunct Associate Professor of Rehabilitation and Regenerative Medicine, Columbia University Irving Medical Center

An Interdisciplinary Approach to Preventing Gun Violence in K-12 Schools

Sonali Rajan, Ed.D., Associate Professor of Health Education, Department of Health and Behavior Studies, Teachers College and Adjunct Associate Professor, Department of Epidemiology, Mailman School of Public Health

Remarks will be delivered by Dr. Lalitha Vasudevan, Vice Dean for Digital Innovation and Managing Director of the Digital Futures Institute, on behalf of Sonali Rajan.

Sanctuary School, Sanctuary City: Protection and Empowerment of Immigrant Youth

Chandler Patton Miranda, Ph.D., Term Assistant Professor, Departments of Urban Studies and Education, Barnard College

Exploring Neuroscience and Behavior

Alex White, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Neuroscience, Department of Neuroscience and Behavior and founder of the Barnard Vision Lab, Barnard College

4:15-4:20 CLOSING REMARKS

4:20-6:00 POSTER SESSION AND NETWORKING RECEPTION (Low Library Rotunda)

BIOGRAPHIES OF TCUB PARTICIPANTS

The Organizers (in alphabetical order)

Thomas Bailey, Ph.D. is the President of Teachers College and the George & Abby O'Neill Professor of Economics & Education. As an economist and the founding director of the Community College Research Center (CCRC) at Teachers College, President Bailey is regarded as one of our nation's leading authorities on community colleges. Since 1992, he has been Director of the Institute on Education and the Economy and has directed three Institute of Education Sciences-funded national centers: the Center for the Analysis of Postsecondary Education and Employment (CAPSEE); the Center for the Analysis of Postsecondary Readiness (CAPR), and the National Center for Postsecondary Research (NCPR). Dr. Bailey is an AERA Fellow and member of the National Academy of Education. In June 2010, U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan appointed him chair of the Committee on Measures of Student Success, which developed recommendations on how community colleges can comply with completion rate disclosure requirements under the Higher Education Opportunity Act. President Bailey's research has been published in a wide variety of education, policy-oriented, and academic journals. He has authored or co-authored several books including: Redesigning America's Community Colleges: A Clearer Path to Student Success (Harvard University Press, 2015), Defending the Community College Equity Agenda (Johns Hopkins University Press, 2006), Working Knowledge: Work-Based Learning and Education Reform (Routledge, 2004), and Manufacturing Advantage (Cornell University Press, 2000).

Linda A. Bell, Ph.D. is the provost and dean of the faculty at Barnard College, where she is also Claire Tow Professor of Economics. Before joining Barnard, Provost Bell was the provost and John B. Hurford Professor of Economics at Haverford College. She is also a research fellow at the Institute for the Study of Labor (IZA) in Bonn, Germany, and a senior consultant for the labor practice group of the National Economic Research Associates. Previously, Provost Bell was a senior economist in the research department of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and project faculty on a Danish Research Council-funded initiative at the Aarhus Business School in Denmark. She has served as a board member on the Committee on the Status of Women in the Economics Profession of the American Economic Association and has held visiting faculty appointments at the Woodrow Wilson School at Princeton University, the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, and Stanford University. Provost Bell has also served as a consultant to the World Bank and the U.S. Department of Labor. She has been active in the American Association of University Professors, first as chair of the Committee on Faculty Compensation, where she authored the association's Annual Faculty Compensation Report from 1997 to 2001, and then as a national council representative from 2003 to 2006.

Victoria Hamilton, M.B.A. is the founding director of the Office of Research Initiatives and Development at Columbia University, reporting to the Executive Vice President for Research. The Office works across disciplines, schools, and campuses to foster interdisciplinary research collaboration. It initiated the conversations that led to the jointly conceived TCUB Connects program. The Office supports efforts to secure external funding for such collaborations, and administers a seed fund for very early-stage research that falls outside the traditional boundaries. The Office also focuses on helping plan and build research infrastructure, such as the Shared Research Computing Facility and the Columbia Nano Initiative facilities. Prior to joining Columbia in January 2007, Ms. Hamilton was a principal of the Washington Advisory Group, consulting with both industry and non-profits on the intersection of scientific and technical research and commerce (1999 to 2006). Previously, she was Chief Operating Officer and Executive Vice President of General American Investors, a NYSE-listed closed end investment fund (1992-1998). Ms. Hamilton holds a B.A. and an M.B.A. from Harvard University.

Carol Scheffner Hammer, Ph.D. is the Vice Dean for Research at Teachers College. In her role as Vice Dean, she is responsible for supporting faculty research, fostering interdisciplinary research efforts, optimizing the research infrastructure, and helping to lead the College's research mission. Prior to joining Teachers College in 2015, she served as Professor and Chair of the Department of Communication Sciences & Disorders at Temple University.

Dr. Hammer's research addresses three interrelated areas that aim to eliminate educational disparities and promote young children's school readiness, with a focus on children and families from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds. These areas include: understanding environmental and cultural influences on children's language and literacy development; developing reliable and valid language assessments for bilingual children; and developing and testing the efficacy of home- and school-based interventions that promote children's language and literacy development. Dr. Hammer's research has been funded continually by federal agencies since 2000, including the National Institutes of Health, US Department of Education, and the Administration for Children and Families. In addition, she is past editor of the American Journal of Speech-Language Pathology and a fellow of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

Dennis Mitchell, D.D.S., M.P.H. is the Executive Vice President for University Life and Senior Vice Provost for Faculty Advancement at Columbia University, and Professor of Dental Medicine. On the faculty since 1991, Mitchell served as the first diversity-focused dean at a U.S. dental school where he led the effort to increase the proportion of historically-underrepresented students in each incoming class from 3% to 20%. As Senior Vice Provost, he implements the programmatic elements of Columbia's ongoing financial commitment (currently totaling $185M) to enhance the diversity of the faculty, and works with the leaders of each school to evaluate and strengthen their diversity initiatives. As an academic, he has focused on building programs to diversify the health professions. As Co-PI of two pipeline programs supported respectively by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, he helped bring over 125 young scholars from underrepresented groups to the Columbia campus each summer.

Dr. Mitchell serves on the board of the Upper Manhattan Empowerment Zone and on the Diversity and Inclusion Advisory Committee of the American Dental Education Association. He is the Council of Representatives Chair (ex-officio) and member of the Health Professions chapter for the National Association of Diversity Officers in Higher Education. He also is a founding member and Columbia representative for the Faculty Advancement Network.

Jeannette M. Wing, Ph.D. is the Executive Vice President for Research at Columbia University and Professor of Computer Science where she has overall responsibility for the University's research enterprise at all New York locations and internationally. She joined Columbia in 2017 as the inaugural Director of the Data Science Institute. Prior to Columbia, Dr. Wing was Corporate Vice President of Microsoft Research, served on the faculty and as department head in computer science at Carnegie Mellon University, and served as Assistant Director for Computer and Information Science and Engineering at the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Wing's research contributions have been in the areas of trustworthy AI, security and privacy, specification and verification, concurrent and distributed systems, programming languages, and software engineering. Her 2006 seminal essay, titled "Computational Thinking," is credited with helping to establish the centrality of computer science to problem-solving in fields where previously it had not been embraced, and thereby influencing K-12 and university curricula worldwide. She is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Association for Computing Machinery (ACM), and the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers.

THE BIOS OF LIGHTNING TALK and POSTER PRESENTERS (alphabetical order)

Perna Arora, Ph.D. is Associate Professor of Psychology and Education in the School Psychology Program, Department of Health and Behavioral Studies at Teachers College, Columbia University. Her research focuses on issues of access and quality of care for historically marginalized youth and adolescents. In particular, her research focuses on 1) identifying risk and protective factors in the development of depressive disorders among ethnic minoritized and immigrant-origin youth, 2) dismantling barriers to help-seeking among ethnic minoritized and immigrant-origin youth and families, and 3) developing and implementing culturally informed school and community-based prevention and intervention programming for youth internalizing disorders.

Charles E. Basch, Ph.D. is the Richard March Hoe Professor of Health and Education in the Health Education Program, Department of Health and Behavior studies at Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Basch is a health education specialist focusing on behavioral epidemiology, program planning and evaluation. He has conducted NIH-funded observational studies and randomized trials on topics ranging from cardiovascular disease, cancer, and diabetes. His current research is on children's oral health; causal connections between health and academic achievement; and social media and population health. His research has a common theme of translating research into practical interventions to reduce health disparities.

Paulo Blikstein, Ph.D. is an Associate Professor of Communications, Media, and Learning Technologies Design in the Department of Mathematics, Science, and Technology at Teachers College, Columbia University. The Transformative Learning Technologies Lab develops, researches, and implements educational technologies for the learning of STEM and Computation. Most of Dr. Blikstein's projects are partnerships with engineers and scientists, bringing cutting-edge content and technologies from their fields to K-12 education, such as robotics, AI, computer vision, microbiology, complex adaptive system, computational modeling, and advanced experimentation. Dr. Blikstein and his team have developed technologies and curricula currently used in more than 10 countries around the world.

Caryn Block, Ph.D. is Professor of Psychology and Education in the Social-Organizational Psychology Program, Department of Organization & Leadership at Teachers College. Dr. Block's research focuses on diversity dynamics in organizations. Her publications examine the influence of gender and racial stereotypes on how leaders are perceived, the effects of these stereotypes on career outcomes and how organizations can disrupt these effects. She has collaborated with researchers at NIOSH to examine the impact of racial discrimination at work on adjustment, and with researchers at Columbia University through the NSF ADVANCE grant to examine the long-term effects of stereotype threat on women scientists.

Alex J. Bowers, Ph.D. is Professor of Education Leadership in the Urban Education Leaders Program, Department of Organization & Leadership at Teachers College, Columbia University. Dr. Bowers is also a Faculty Affiliate of the Data Science Institute (DSI) at Columbia University. His research focuses on the intersection of effective school and district leadership, organization and HR, data driven decision making, student grades and test scores, student persistence and dropouts. His work also considers the influence of school finance, facilities, and technology on student achievement. Professor Bowers studies these domains through the application of data science, and big data analytics, such as data visualization analytics, multilevel and growth mixture modeling, and cluster analysis heatmap data dashboards.

Thomas Brock, Ph.D. is the Director of the Community College Research Center. He also directs the Education Policy and Higher and Postsecondary Education Programs in the Departments of Education Policy and Social Analysis and Organization & Leadership at Teachers College. The Community College Research Center partners with community colleges across the country to investigate the roots of educational inequity and identify promising approaches to institutional improvement. Our goal is to provide every college leader, educator, and policymaker with the evidence they need to make decisions that promote student success.

Nathan Holbert, Ph.D. is Associate Professor of Communication, Media and Learning Technology Design in the Department of Mathematics, Science & Technology at Teachers College. Dr. Holbert builds playful tools and learning environments that invite all people to creatively construct and share things they care about. As a Learning Scientist, he iteratively designs these tools and spaces to ask questions about how representations and interactions enable thinking and action. He believes our personal experiences and values matter, and consequently his work engages communities and stakeholders throughout the design process.

Maria Eugenia Lozano, Ed.D. joined Barnard's faculty in 2010. Previously, she taught at Columbia University, University of Massachusetts, Amherst College, Holyoke Community College, and Washington State University. Her research interests include second language acquisition, language maintenance among immigrants, and the use of Web 2.0 technologies for language teaching. At Barnard she teaches beginner, intermediate, and advanced Spanish languages courses.

S. Garnett Russell, Ph.D. is Associate Professor of International and Comparative Education in the Department of International & Transcultural Studies at Teachers College, Columbia University. She is also the Director of the International and Comparative Education Program and George Clement Bond Center for African Education. Dr. Russell's research examines how countries draw on education systems to promote peacebuilding, citizenship, and human rights in conflict affected and post-conflict countries. She has conducted studies on peacebuilding in Rwanda, South Africa, and Colombia.

In addition, her work examines the role of education systems in supporting forcibly displaced populations, including urban refugees in Ecuador, Kenya, and Lebanon, as well as understanding belonging and civic identity resettled refugees and newcomers in the United States.

Alex White, Ph.D. joined the Barnard department of Neuroscience & Behavior in 2021 and established the Barnard Vision Lab. Alex is a cognitive neuroscientist, trained to study visual perception and now focused on the science of reading. He and his students explore how people recognize written words, using psychophysics, eye-tracking, and functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI). While most of his research is about the typical adult brain, he is also interested in the development of visual and language skills and how they differ in conditions such as dyslexia.
